Mitt Romney has a new book out this week called No Apology: Believe What You Want to About Me, but Do Not Apologize for Who I Am. In the first chapter, titled "My Family," Romney talks about his mother, Lenore, and how her faith influenced his. He writes: My mother was born into a pretty conservative Mormon family. She grew up hearing her father, George, preach the need for principle and humility and to treat people with respect. Mother, the third child of four, was taught to be modest and kind, to be self-effacing, to give others the benefit of the doubt, and to accept truth with good humor. In short, she was told that she could not expect, or demand, the world and even though it was tempting
