What's new:

2017 Review That was the end of 2016, and other teams still don't know what 2017 will bring to their basslines! We still have you covered though! The 3 Pack is for the ones who didn't get much out of their 100 bucks in 2016. Here's a look at a 3

pack of basslines from the 3 newcomers of 2016, Ryan Mackay, Boris Massino, and Kai Tram. There are 5 bpm's in this pack, which are all 66BPM. Featuring a little progressive beats, to 4/4 beats, this pack is an easy (and cheap) way to get you started in 2017! To start off, Boris Massino's contribution seems like an obvious choice if you're looking for basslines for 67BPM. The tone is organic, but also very much catchy. It has all sorts of push and pull from the left and right brain, with the left brain saying "turn it up more" and the right brain saying "that's not enough". But if you want more, there are 11 different layers in the mix as well. Each one offering up different characteristics: Stab, Step, Fuzz, 1-2-1-2, and et cetera. Even if your main goal for 2017 is to just get by, you'll find that this track is an easy addition to your mix. Secondly, Kai Tram offers two other offerings as well. His portfolio is extremely diverse, offering you a range of possibilities for all kinds of styles. What you're going to hear when you open this track is that you're going to hear almost no bass. Where there are basses, they're very soft. But where they are, they bring you to pause and think. And when the bass booms back in, it not only ups the tempo for this track, but also takes the listener right back to 80's backing tracks that had that same bounce. If that's something you dig, you're going to find that this track is exactly what you're looking for. Both of these tracks are available on Tidal, so you can find them now! Then there is our third option: Ryan Mackay's first release on X3. This particular track might be a little different from the two contributions that preceded it, but it
