A video game media critique, game review and interview with the incredible director of the latest DOOM and Destiny worlds. 2017 never looked this golden this will get a full review soon. Follow me on Twitter @DoubleD7EDGames for weekly updates and more.Please be patient for my longer videos, which will have better quality audio. Please do ignore all my swearing from Doom 1-3. Is a military grade Flak Jacket your first line of defence? Or do you smoke a phantom first? I've been playing a lot of Destiny this past week and trying to join all the different faction groups to make some new friends. You can actually level faster by pumping the groups you've joined at a higher tier faster than leveling it by just killing, ignoring the numbers completely. The IDLE economy is a great system, and the more you build up the more powerful those powers get. All of my power bar skills are failing as I go through the story missions, even after my new new Librarian exogame. However by the end of the campaign I should have good skills with the FLASHLIGHT and SHOTGUN. I can get into a Lobby pretty quick, and accept game invites from a friends group if I'm level 83 or so. I am being immediately kited to level 83 by the Trinity War bosses, so not sure how much I'll be able to accomplish. There's also one level 83 Duke there that I am trying to kill, but as I'm grinding the story missions he's just giving me more and more XP. The story missions do help you level quicker if played correctly, and jumping into a level 52 or 53 group doesn't help progress the story if you're playing the right playsets for each area. I did read up on my class's powers, and all of my powers are, if I'm not jumping by a certain group, useless. I've been roaming around on this world for a while, and it isn't as loud as the Hardcore versions of Destiny, it's actually a fairly quiet world. No one is really playing around that much. I don't really like the colour scheme of it all, reminds me of the original Destiny. I'll grab a new Zone Select once I'm higher so I can get into it again, and find the world that my group has gone into. [youtube]
