C: My YouTube: No stealing.Survey of healthcare practice on the day of accidental out-of-hospital cardiac arrest: lessons for the updated European Resuscitation Guidelines. Survival following out-of-hospital cardiac arrest has increased over the past 15 years but remains low, with only 5% of patients surviving to hospital discharge. While several recent studies have focused on the potential impact of the updated European Resuscitation Guidelines on survival, no study has analysed the impact of the Guideline on healthcare practice. We aimed to assess the day-of-arrest management and key interventions within the healthcare teams before and after the release of the European Resuscitation Guidelines. A retrospective study of all out-of-hospital cardiac arrest patients presenting to 21 emergency medical service (EMS) agencies in a metropolitan region of Australia in 2009 and 2010. Patients were included if they were found to have an arrested heart in the field and required cardiopulmonary resuscitation. Data from 148 adult patients were analysed. The mean age of patients was 56.0 ± 20.6 years. Only 3 patients (2.1%) survived to hospital discharge. The median time between arrest and activation of EMS was 2.3 min (interquartile range [IQR]: 1.2-3.6 min). The median time between collapse and first documented rhythm was 7.0 min (IQR: 3.0-10).
