It means if I input 'january' date, it will show the data of that month. Can someone help me to write the query? Or, some advice for the query or php code? A: You can do this with a dynamic query, based on the month you are interested in. I would do it with something like this: `SELECT... FROM... WHERE `date` =`

`DATE_FORMAT('01-january-2012','%Y-%m-%d')` Here's a tutorial on MySQL date functions: A: The query below will display all of the data from the selected month: `SELECT * FROM table_name WHERE date_column = DATE_FORMAT(DATE_ADD(CURDATE(), INTERVAL -1 MONTH), '%Y-%m-%d')` Q: Is small business rebates/incentives tax deductible? I have heard that the IRS considers rebates received by a small business to be business expenses, but I'm unclear if the amount of any rebate is a factor in deciding if it's deductible or not. Are there any established rules about when small business incentives are deductible? A: "Small business" may be a term of art, but not a term of tax law. The IRS will consider the size of the company for tax purposes, but a rebate that has no relationship to your business' size, in terms of sales, profit, etc., will not be considered a "business expense" or "reimbursed business expense". It's exactly like if I purchased a car and then wrote you a check for $10,000 to buy a new car. It might seem like you made a business expense out of the $10,000 - but it's not. The IRS may consider rebates as business expenses. They're just not going to be deductible on your business income tax return unless the retailer.5046, which shows a curved inflection point where the interface between the fiber core and cladding layers begins to bend, is seen to have a peak position at the center wavelength of the output mode. What is seen is that the peak position of the curve shifts from 1511.33 nm to 1512.72 nm and then to 1512.86 nm, indicating that the curved interface position shifts to the blue. It is clear that as the heat increases the curved interface position shifts to the blue, i.e. the core-clad interface shifts toward the direction of the cladding, which is the opposite of what would be expected to happen. The shift is accompanied by a large drop in the dispersion slope from 14.91 to 4.11  $m^2/m0.33$ . This is expected from the discussion of FIG. 7, because as the laser power is increased the curved interface position of the fiber moves to the position of the cladding, causing the effective refractive index of the clad layer to increase, thus reducing the dispersion slope. The heated fiber does not function correctly, however.

Federal Opposition Leader Tony Abbott's decision to back the sale of uranium to India has been panned as a "cynical and wily" move by Labor. Mr Abbott says he will make the decision this week despite a decision by the Labor party's National Conference in 2008 to ban the sale of uranium to India. In an opinion piece in The Australian today, the Opposition Leader said Labor was wrong to take a party line on the issue which he said is "up to the Prime Minister to decide". But speaking to ABC Radio on Sunday, shadow treasurer Chris Bowen said Mr Abbott's stance makes little sense, especially when India is willing to pay more for the uranium. "They are willing to pay more, so in fact the true economic interest would be to sell uranium to them," he said. "If the Prime Minister thinks he's going to have a nice relationship with [Prime Minister Manmohan] Singh,
