My question is, how do I only get the values of this array. For example, I want to print the values of the [label] and [code], but instead it prints [0] => Array ([0] => 1 [0] => 1) [1] => Array ([0] => 1 [1] => 2). A: You can use array_values(); Returns the array in which a specified array is nested. If the specified array is empty or NULL, returns an array consisting of all elements of the specified array (except the terminating null value at the end). print_r(array_values($itemsArray)); Several celebrities, including Patrice O'Neal, Lance McCullers, and Brendon Urie, are participating in the #FilmWithPAT race during NATPE. The entry deadline has been extended until September 9th. The next installment of the #FilmWithPAT series will be Patrick Ewing and Billy Packer discussing their long-running rivalry as part of Pat-Billy. During this episode, Packer explains his role in the '97 East All-Star Game. Patience is essential when responding to messages on social media. #FilmWithPAT doesn't guarantee an immediate response.
