The Visual C++ 2010 Redistributable Package installs the.Net framework 4.0 runtime on your computer. So I have to install the latest redistributable? A: I believe you are just describing the same file, vs_runtime_x86.exe. Rather than installing that, and then installing MSVCR80.dll, as you suggest, one of the options is to install Microsoft Visual C++ 2010 Redistributable Package, which installs all of the necessary files. Q: Javascript - Can I submit a form and display the response immediately? can anyone please help me figure this one out? I'm working on a page that uses JavaScript and AJAX to submit a form, and then displays the response (it's a simple form that requires a title and an address that gets posted to a database). I have the form/submit/check the response all working, but what I don't know how to do is "refresh" the page and display the response as it happens. Is there any way to do this with JavaScript or something? A: If by "refresh" you mean update, then in the jQuery docs, it says: A complete list of all jQuery live events is: c6a93da74d
